BRYAN'S OWN IDEA

London Times Holds Resignation Personal, Not Political.

Change Signifies Nothing in Policy of United States.

COMMONER STILL A-RUNNING

Graphic Says Fires of Ambition Are Still Burning.

Chronicle Thinks Withdrawal Will Lighten Wilson's Burdens.

London, June 10.—The Times, discussing in an editorial, Mr. Bryan's resignation, says:

"Mr. Bryan's resignation is a much more personal than political event. It is a dramatic incident in a highly dramatic career, but it is not the turning point or even a milestone in the national policy."

"It would argue, indeed, a profound misunderstanding of current American conditions to ascribe to it one thing the importance one would naturally attach to the resignation of, say, Sir Edward Grey. Such political significance as it carries with it, is in the main domestic and not international. It is not to be regarded as a victory for the war party, or as a defeat for the peace party, or as indicating any break in the solid mass of popular opinion which is steadfastly arrayed behind President Wilson, and is prepared to support him in whatever course he decides to pursue."

"Mr. Bryan's resignation is the result of views peculiarly his own. He sees his country taking such an attitude against Germany which, if persisted in, involves the risk of war, and he feels that he cannot conscientiously be a party to incurring such liability."

"In its general comment on the correspondence between President Wilson and Mr. Bryan, the Times assumes that in every important transaction the president has been in fact his own secretary of state. That Mr. Bryan's departure implies no change in the opinions which have shaped American policy under President Wilson, who, the Times says, commands at this difficult moment, the confidence of his countrymen in a measure rarely vouchsafed to any president."

"The intelligence, firmness and caution of the American president's policy of the past few months," is praised by the Daily Chronicle in an editorial. The paper declares that while Mr. Bryan is a great politician and party organizer, President Wilson is a far more commanding figure in statesmanship.

"Ever since the war began," says the Chronicle, "President Wilson has had in ever increasing degree to take the burden of the department of state on his own shoulders. He will really be eased rather than hampered by Mr. Bryan's resignation."

Change Not Important.

The Daily Graphic, in an editorial, says:

"The incident is in keeping with Mr. Bryan's spectacular career, but its importance may easily be overestimated. It must be remembered that, in accordance with American precedent, he became secretary of state automatically, not in recognition of a profound knowledge of international politics, but solely because he was Mr. Wilson's chief competitor for the presidency. His ambition for that distinguished position is possibly as burning as ever, but his resignation under the present dramatic conditions is hardly likely to increase his following."

Topeka's federal building is paid for. A voucher for final payment of improvements costing $98,000 on the Topeka federal building was today mailed by W. O. Rigby, postmaster, to the Mississippi Valley Construction company, which remodeled the building. The voucher for this amounting to $8,000. W. L. Porter, city commissioner of parks, reported today that the eight skunks with which he is stocking the municipal skunk farm had been successfully dosed. He quietly changed his clothes and thought he had them safely concealed in a closet. But they weren't.

Wednesday night when Ed McGrath, a plumber living at 409 East Eighth street, left an unfinished job on the third floor of the Campbell drug store building, 704 Kansas avenue, he piled his tools in a corner of the room thinking they would be safe. When he returned to the building this morning the tools, valued at $20, were gone. They were stolen either late Wednesday night or early this morning. The stolen tools included set of pipe dies, a pipe cutter, a pipe vice and three heavy wrenches.

J. A. Ramsay, city sanitary sergeant, Wednesday evening before leaving his office, took five live mouse traps of spring-trigger variety. Cockroaches are as big as mice in the city hall and the sanitary sergeant hoped to decrease the roach population. But J. S. Weir, custodian at the city hall, spoiled his plans by headlessly sweeping the traps from the floor while cleaning the room. He said this morning he heard clicks in his tush, but he did not know what he had done until Ramsay sought an explanation.

Louis Kross, of the Kross bottling works, 400 Kansas avenue, sustained a painful injury last Wednesday afternoon when the team which he was driving was frightened by a weight falling from the wagon, and ran away. The runaway started at Twelfth and Jackson street, and stopped at Fourteenth and Quincy when the horses swung around the sharp turn and threw themselves. Young Kross was thrown from the wagon—a distributing drier from the bottling works. In falling on the pavement a leg of one of the horses was broken. It was ordered by Kilmaurs King, humane officer. Kross lives at 322 Topeka avenue.

HE SIGNS THE PLEDGE.

Charles Taylor Agrees to Ride "Water Wagon" Seven Months.

An agreement by which Charles M. Taylor of Meriden undertakes to stay on the "water wagon" and to absent himself from the place of residence of his relatives at Meriden for a period of seven months was filed with C. W. Bowers, clerk of the district court of Shawnee county this morning. The agreement assigns to his sister, Mrs. E. M. Fitzgerald of Meriden, his interest in a judgment for $5,000 against the Santa Fe railroad in a damage suit now pending in the supreme court on appeal, in consideration of the payment of an allowance of $7 a week until January 8, 1916, if the appeal is not settled sooner.

Taylor lost both legs and was otherwise mutilated by a Santa Fe train at Meriden on the morning of the day after Christmas, 1913, when he attempted to swing onto the steps of a moving passenger coach and was struck by a baggage truck on the platform. The jury which tried the case last October found that he had had a drink of whiskey instead of his breakfast that morning and that he had been intoxicated Christmas night. He left his sister's home on arising, went in search of a drink, and after finding that, started for Topeka. He was late at the station and ran to catch the train as it was pulling out.

Taylor's suit was for $5,000 damages. He got a judgment for a fourth of that amount and the railroad company is fighting it.

His agreement, made with his sister, pledges the amount which may be received from the judgment after deducting the one-third contingent that goes to his attorneys, in consideration of the payment of certain of his debts and his weekly allowance. The payment of debts and allowance is dependent upon his remaining away from Meriden and staying sober, and the weekly remittance may be held up by reason of bhacety at Mrs. Fitzgerald's discretion.
